Violence of England's "Furies" Defended by Inez Millholland

By Mrs. Inez Millholland Boissevain,
The Famous Woman Lawyer and American Military Suffragist.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE has predicted that violence or lynching will be the answer of the men of England to the demands of the women of England for political rights. I know the prediction is not a new one. It is the result of the knowledge, and the boast to the gods are not the women. Generally, men are the origin of the majority of all crimes. It is to the turn of the woman who makes the crime that she is the one to be lynched. It is in the turn for each woman to take upon herself the responsibility for civilization and to free herself from the bonds that have been placed on her. The women of England have been overburdened with work. They have done their utmost. They have fought for their rights. They have争取ed. They have appealed. The English are worn out. The English women are worn out. They are tired. They are ready to explode. This is not a new idea. It is the result of years of work. The women of England have been treated unjustly. They have been wronged. They have been deprived of their rights. It is time they were recognized as equal partners in the government. The women of England are ready to take their places. They are ready to take their rights.

Now, I am not trying to be the fact that by calling England a land of thought, I am not trying to be the fact that England is a land of thought. I am trying to be the fact that all Englishwomen are ready to go out and fight for their rights. The women of England are ready to go out and fight for their rights. They are ready to fight for their rights. They are ready to fight for their rights. They are ready to fight for their rights. They are ready to fight for their rights.

And perhaps, in the end, the women of England will be the ones to lead the way. Perhaps they will lead the way. Perhaps they will lead the way. Perhaps they will lead the way. Perhaps they will lead the way.

Violence, the only answer...