

IMMIGRATION BOARD FOR NEVADA IS URGED BY RAILROAD HEAD

Legislature Should Provide Some Means to Attract and Care for Settlers Says R. M. Cox; Every New Homesteader Is Worth $1000 to State First Year He Is Here

That the approaching session of the legislature should provide by some method to attract and care for settlers is the opinion of General Manager Ramsey M. Cox of the N.-C.-O. Railway. He believes this could be accomplished by a board, or commission on immigration and settlement, or some method in successful use in other states.

"Every actual settler you procure for Nevada," said Mr. Cox this morning, "is worth $1000 in actual profit to the community in which he settles for the first year. If he buys a tract of land he pays the local realty man a profit, then he pays the lumberman a profit, then the grocer, the dry goods man, the hardware man, the professional man and every class represented. These various dealers who have goods or talent for sale will receive in excess of $1000 from him the first year in profit. In subsequent years he helps the other fellow to reduce taxes, he spends his money in the community and each dealer receives a profit. I believe we hold too lightly the actual value of a bona fide settler."

"Moreover, we should see to it that the homesteader is placed properly, that he is given expert advice as to methods of farming, that he conforms to climatic and other conditions and above all, that an excessive price is not placed upon the land he purchases and that he is afforded ample time in which to earn his payments on the property."

"I asked land owners to give purchasers 30 years time in which to make their payments and cut the price of their land in half so that the man of small means could be afforded a chance to make the unsold portion of their land twice as valuable. They said they couldn't do it but they did it and settlers are beginning to take advantage of the reasonable prices and the easy terms. Thirty years is, indeed, a long time and the interest rate is low. This is land in the Goose Lake valley and the land and a perpetual irrigation right is worth around $50 per acre."

"Another man said he could not allow 30 years time—but he finally made it 20 years. About 5 per cent cash—then no further payment for five years—and 15 years after that to complete payments. This land is within 100 miles of Reno and will have water for irrigation."

"All these large areas of land, held for speculative purposes, are retarding development and bringing us to the condition we are facing at the present time," continued Mr. Cox. "If we are going to meet the problems involved in the high cost of living, we must first meet the problems involved in the cost of high living. Every possible encouragement must be offered the man who is determined to become a producer, rather than a consumer. We might as well attempt to turn back the tide of the ocean with a pit-bfork as to attempt to purchase at a low price when the supply does not equal the demand."

MISS MARTIN PAYS BEAUTIFUL SUFFRAGIST LEADER TO BE BURIED IN ADIRONDACKS

Discusses Work and Career of Mrs. Boissevain Who Died on Coast Saturday

Miss Anne Martin, national chairman of the Woman's Party, was a very intimate friend of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, the suffrage leader who died yesterday after an illness of several weeks. Miss Martin today paid the following tribute to Mrs. Boissevain:

"Inez Milholland was a figure from a heroic legend, from a romance of the middle ages, a Joan of Arc. She was not only beautiful, she had a beautiful, brilliant mind and spirit; she used her great talents and fearlessness not to free a conquered country, but to free all women."

"She was ill the night she spoke at the Majestic Theater in Reno. She rose from a sick bed to give the message of the Woman's Party to the women of Nevada. She kept all her Nevada engagements, speaking in Winnemucca, Virginia, Silver City, Carson and Reno, keeping up by force of will power, by her intense desire to give her message and not disappoint the people. She collapsed in California as she was making her last speech in Los Angeles, four days after she spoke here."

"Her brief life, her last work for the National Woman's Party, shows the strain put upon women in their struggle for freedom. She is one of many women who have died upon this field of honor. Her death emphasizes the injustice of forcing women to continue the struggle, the injustice of longer denying them what is theirs by right, political equality and freedom throughout the nation."

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—Preparations were being made today to take the body of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, who died here Saturday night, to New York City for funeral services and thence to Meadowmount, in the Adirondacks, the old family home of the Milhollands, where the burial will take place.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Elmer Milholland, her husband, Eugene Boissevain, and her sister, Miss Vida Milholland, who came here soon after she became critically ill a month ago, while on a suffrage campaign, and who were with her when she died, and a few friends, will compose the funeral party.

Inez Milholland Boissevain was for many years widely known for her activity as a woman suffragist, a social welfare worker, an advocate of socialism, and as a practicing lawyer. As a student in Vassar College, 1905-9, although known as the beauty, and possessed of wealth and position, she shunned society as such, and shocked the more conservative college opinion by her radical social views. One of her acts during this period was to hold a suffrage meeting in a graveyard at night when permission to hold the meeting in the college chapel had been refused her. She also made a name for herself as an athlete, being captain of her class hockey team which won the college championship, and a member of the 1909 track team, at which time she established a new record for the college in the eight-pound sprint at 21 feet, 7 7/8 inches.

Aside from her college activities, she worked among the poor children in the city of Poughkeepsie, and had herself appointed court probation officer. During her first college vacation she visited London and there joined the Fabian League suffragettes, making several speeches and being once arrested.

During the 1908 presidential campaign she won new fame as "the girl who broke up the Taft parade." While the parade was being held in New York City, she stationed herself in a window and shouted, "Votes for women!" through a megaphone. Some of the marchers fell out of the parade and gathered around her to hear her make a speech for the suffrage cause.

Following her graduation from Vassar College, she attempted to enter Harvard Law School, but this permission was denied her on the ground that it was not a coeducational institution. The incident gave rise to a heated newspaper controversy in which Inez Milholland and other prominent feminists took part. She also became active about this time in the working girls' cause, taking part in the shirt waist makers' strike. In a clash of the strikers with the police she was arrested and locked up, but after a controversy of several weeks the charge against her of leading an unlawful assembly was finally dropped.

Miss Milholland finally received her degree in law at the New York University Law School in 1912, and during this time she was active as a suffrage worker and speaker and organizer of woman's parades, being featured in them both in New York, Washington, D. C., and elsewhere as "the most beautiful suffragette." At election time she was always a watcher at the polls and was among the women who went to Albany to demand of the legislature woman's rights to vote.

She began the practice of law in 1912 as a clerk in the offices of James W. Osborne, her first case being the defense of "Red Phil" Davidson, charged with the murder of "Big Jack" Zelig. Her next case was the defense of Geo. Doy Yung, accused of murder in a Chinatown tong war, and she was successful in obtaining his acquittal.

In July 1913 she married by a civil ceremony in London Eugene Boissevain, a wealthy Hollander, to whom she had been introduced by William Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy. She returned to this country and continued her practice of law and suffrage activities. In 1915 she was denied permission to make a suffrage speech at the 50th anniversary ceremonies of Vassar College. Later in the same year she went to Italy as a war correspondent and was forced to leave Italy by the authorities there because of her pacifist writings.

In 1916 she went as a delegate on the Ford peace ship, but left the party at Stockholm, because, as she said in a statement, "the undemocratic methods employed by the managers are repugnant to my principles."

Mrs. Boissevain was born in New York, August 6, 1886, receiving her early education in New York, London and Berlin. She was a member of the Political Equality League, Women's Political Union, National Child Labor Committee, Woman's Social and Political Union of England and the Fabian Society, England.

Last Call for Thanksgiving Linens

Until Thanksgiving we will continue to sell table damask at the same prices we have asked for the past year. What else can you buy today at the prices quoted a year ago? We are fortunate in having on hand a big assortment of Linen Sets—the pattern cloths with napkins—and the finished cloth, round, square or longer, hemstitched or scalloped and dozen napkins. Special on all linen cloth, German manufacture, size 60x82 inches, hemstitched all around and twelve napkins to match $7.50 the set. 70-inch Irish Damask, all pure linen, many choice designs, napkins to match if desired $1.00 and $1.25 yd.

A COMPARISON SALE OF SUITS

This is a store that is never undersold. We always guarantee our prices and qualities. That is one secret of the success of our Suit Department. There is positively not one suit in this department from last Fall. We have done a phenomenal business this season and we will take a loss cheerfully. When you buy a suit examine the material, the lining, the workmanship, the style, and remember "No charge for alteration." Every suit in our store is now included in these three prices.

The S. & H. Green Trading Stamps

We sometimes wonder if you are fully aware of the value of the little green stamp which we give with each 10c cash purchase. This is the season when they are specially valuable; you are selecting gifts for Christmas and the Premium Parlor is filled with just what you want. Visit the Stamp Department in our basement Wednesday, get 10 stamps free and the lady in charge will explain many ways to help fill your book. An unusually large shipment of premiums has just been received.
